The role of science in oil spills response
- Ed Levine, NOAA, US
Oiled Wildlife Response: and emerging scientific field

17H00 – 17H30 Session: Contingency planning

- Hugo Nijkamp, Sea Alarm, B

Oiled wildlife preparedness and planning in Europe

Discussion

20H00 Workshop Dinner

Friday – 18th April 2008

9H00-10H30 Session: Vulnerability mapping

- Kees Camphuysen, Royal NIOZ, NL
Evaluating the vulnerability of marine areas in terms of sensitivity to oil pollution
- Cathrine Spikkerud, DNV, NO
Challenges in the use of vulnerability maps in oil spill response and planning
- Vanessa Oliveira, SPEA, PT
Mapping marine birds populations with limited data

10H30-11H15 Coffee Break + “organised” tour to the exhibition/posters area

11H15-12H15 Session: Preventing animals of getting oiled

- Mike Ziccardi, Oiled Wildlife Care Network, US
The science behind hazing
- Curt Clumper, IBRRC, US
Pre-emptive capture as a response option

Debate

Elio Vicente, Zoomarine
Introduction to the Rehabilitation Centre visit (after lunch)

12H30 – 13H30 Lunch

13H30 – 14H00 Visit to Rehabilitation centre

14H00 – 16H00 Session: Rehabilitation of oiled wildlife

- Mike Ziccardi, Oiled Wildlife Care Network, US
Avian rehabilitation methods
- Thierry Jauniaux, BMM/MUMM, B
Rehabilitation of oiled marine mammals: an assessment
- Pascual Calabuig, E
Rehabilitation of oiled seaturtles in the Canarian Islands and an assessment of seaturtle oiling in Europe

Debate

16H00 – 16H30 Coffee Break

- Mark Grantham, BTO, UK
Monitoring post-release survival of rehabilitated birds
- Tim Thomas, RSPCA, UK
The use of coloured rings in rehabilitated birds

Debate

17H30 – 18H30 Session: Impact Assessment

- Kees Camphuysen, Royal NIOZ, NL
Assessing the impact of accidental oil spills and chronic oil pollution
- Greg Robertson, Canadian Wildlife Service, Canada
Assessing the impact of oil spills on seabirds: the importance of drift experiments and population modelling

Debate

20H00 Gala Dinner at Zoomarine

Saturday – 19th April 2008

9H00-10H00 Session: Essence of Networks and their coordination

- Hugo Nijkamp, Sea Alarm, B
The need for structural European coordination on oiled wildlife response
- Elio Vicente, Zoomarine, PT
The frugal managing of the meagre resources of small countries – the Portuguese example

Debate

10H00-10H30 Coffee Break

10H30 – 11H20 Session: Conclusions

- Hugo Nijkamp, Sea Alarm, B
Main achievements
- Claudia Jesus-Rydin, Nordeconsult, SE
Action Plan: Meeting the needs for research and development for oiled wildlife response

11H20 – 12H00

Panel: Partners, Experts, Key-note speakers (to be confirmed)
Concluding discussion open to the audience

Closing address by Elio, Zoomarine, PT
